

A CIVIS BLENDED INTENSIVE PROGRAMME

RELIGIOUS MINORITIES IN EARLY MODERN EUROPE

Learn about the lives and experiences of persecuted Muslim, Jewish, Catholic and Protestant men and women throughout Europe, from slaves to indigenous peoples

Instructors

A team of 10 instructors from French, German, Swedish, Spanish, Italian and English universities.

Dates

Virtual part:
19 April -24 May 2024
Physical part:
27-31 May 2024.

Assessment

An oral presentation of a research project supervised by instructors, a written assessment in the form of a blog post, a short multiple-choice questionnaire.

For whom?

Master and PhD students. B2 level in English to follow the classes and interact. Previous degree in any discipline of the Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences recommended.

WHY APPLYING?

Our Blended Intensive Programme offers a unique opportunity for those interested in the study of religions in the early modern period to explore different countries and approaches as well as understand better the way today's multiconfessional societies have been shaped by their religious past.

François Dubois, St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre, https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/File:La_messace_de_San_Bartolom%C3%A9.jpg, por. Fran%C3%A7ois Dubois.

A VIRTUAL PART

Several case studies on encounters, violence and conflicts, toleration, material culture and narratives of religious experience, all based on primary sources.

A PHYSICAL PART IN PROVENCE

The opportunity to explore several religious sites in Southern France such as Carpentras, the Lubéron and Aigues-Mortes, while working on a research project.

OUR OBJECTIVES

To present key themes in the history of religions, to propose a variety of tools, to reveal the variety of sources, to explore the way religious minorities have shaped our collective memories and landscapes.

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN

To deal with written, visual and material sources, to explore interdisciplinary approaches, to prepare and present a project, to publish blog posts for a wider audience.

Contact:
anne.page@univ-amu.fr

Aix-Marseille University
School of Arts and Humanities
29 avenue Robert Schuman
13621 Aix-en-Provence Cedex 1
FRANCE